The Eucharist Shows Us God’s Humility
Francis discovered the humility of God through his encounter with Jesus Christ, especially the Christ on the cross. He described the mystery of the triune God as sublime and humble, ineffable and immanent, a mystery of opposites, which he grasped through his insight to Christ as Son, Word and wisdom of the Father. The most profound expression of God’s humility for Francis was in the Eucharist and he described this mystery of God’s humble presence, this “Body of Christ,” as the principal sacrament of God and the means of relationship to God.
— from the book The Humility of God: A Franciscan Perspective
by Ilia Delio, OSF

Thursday: Thanksgiving Day
Saturday: St. Andrew

CHRIST, THE KING
Feast Day November 25, 2012
The selection from the book of Daniel presented in today’s first reading was part of an attempt to weave a vision of ultimate success for the Jews under persecution. Exactly whom the author had in mind when he refers to “one like a Son of Man” is hotly disputed by scholars today. The fact is, we simply do not know if the author meant anyone in particular or if this is a collective, figurative image of Israel’s triumph. What we do know is that the early Christian community seized upon this passage and recognized it as a messianic prophecy, a foretelling of the ultimate triumph of Jesus as the Christ of God. The Lectionary’s juxtaposition of messianic prophecy, a foretelling of the ultimate triumph of Jesus before Pilate that he did indeed have a kingdom “not here” takes on new meaning against the cosmic vision of contemporary understanding of how, in Jesus and his resurrection and ascension, we have seen the fulfillment of Daniel’s vision of ultimate deliverance. The veiled admission of Jesus before Pilate that he did indeed have a kingdom “not here” takes on new meaning against the cosmic vision of Daniel, who allows us to glimpse the “Ancient One” on his heavenly throne.

St. Catherine of Alexandria
Feast Day: November 25
Mystical martyr, one of the Fourteen Holy Helpers who appeared to St. Joan of Arc. Catherine has been venerated in the East since the tenth century. She is traditionally recorded as being born in Alexandria, Egypt, to a noble Roman family. She was converted by a vision and personally denounced Emperor Maxentius (r. 306-312) for his persecutions. Arrested, Catherine debated with fifty pagan philosophers, who were converted by her arguments and then slain. Refusing the imperial offers made for her to recant, Catherine was imprisoned, yet she is credited with converting to the faith the emperor, an officer, and two hundred soldiers. The emperor condemned her to death on a spiked wheel. An angel destroyed the wheel, so Catherine was beheaded. An angel carried her body to Mount Sinai, where she is buried. St. Catherine's Monastery is still found there today. Her relics are in Cologne, Nuremberg, Rouen, and in Grevenrode. She is patroness of Valais, the University of Paris, libraries, hospitals, virgins, pupils, teachers, theologians, universities, Parisian haute couture, bakers, barbers, and others.

St. Andrew
Feast Day: November 30
Apostle and martyr. Andrew, whose name is Greek for “courage” or “virility,” was the son of a Galilean fisherman named Jonas and the brother of Simon Peter. Andrew lived in Capernaum, or Capharnaum, and was a follower of St. John the Baptist before being called by Christ. He recognized Jesus as the Messiah and introduced him to his brother Simon Peter. With Peter, James the Elder, and St. John, Andrew formed the inner circle of Jesus’ Apostles. He is mentioned in the New Testament as being present in several events in Jesus’ life and mission. After Christ’s Resurrection and Ascension, Andrew shared in the gifts of Pentecost with the other Apostles. Early Church historians record that he conducted missions in Cappadocia (now Turkey), Galatia (modern Turkey), Bithynia (Turkey), Scythia (from modern northern Black Sea area to parts of Asia), and then in Byzantium (Turkey). He also preached in Thrace, Macedonia, and Thessaly (in Greece) and in Achaea (modern Greece and Macedonia). He was crucified on an X-shaped cross in Patrae, in Achaea, by the order of Aegaeus, the Roman governor. Andrew was tied, not nailed, to his cross, so that his suffering would be prolonged. His martyrdom is believed to have taken place in the reign of Emperor Nero (r. 54-68), on November 30 of the year 60. Many legends and traditions have developed about Andrew. He had many supposed near-escapes and trials during his apostolate. He faced demons, saved forty shipwrecked people, brought the dead back to life, suffered arson against his residence, prison terms, and attacks by mobs. When he was tried in Achaea, Andrew was scourged before being crucified. While on the cross, Andrew continued preaching for two torturous days. A divine light glistened on his dying body, and those attempting to torment him found themselves paralyzed. Even Roman Governor Aegaeus was stricken with madness. Maximila, the wife of the governor, who had been baptized by Andrew, buried him. St. Andrew is the patron of Scotland, Russia, Greece, Burgundy, Spain, Sicily, Lower Austria, Naples, Ravena, Brescia, Amalfi, Mantua, Manila, Bruges, Bordeaux, and Patras. He is also the patron of butchers, fishermen, miners, rope-makers, spinsters, water carriers, and weddings. He is invoked for protection against gout, sore throats, and infertility. On the eve of his feast day, young women will see their future husbands if they pray and perform certain actions. Children can be cured of coughs by embracing Andrew’s statue on his feast.

Some of Andrew’s relics were taken to Constantinople (now Istanbul), and other relics are in Raenna, Milan, Moscow, Brescia, Nolan, Namur, and other sites. Several orders of knighthood were established in his honor as well: the Order of the Golden Fleece I Spain, founded in 1429; King James’ Order of St. Andrew, founded in Scotland in 1540; and the Order of St. Andrew of Czar Peter I, also known as Peter the Great (r. 1682-1725), founded in 1698. The most famous golf course in the world, in Scotland, also bears his name. St. Andrew is depicted in liturgical art as a fisherman or missionary, normally with his X-shaped (satire) cross.

Catherine is also invoked against diseases of the head and tongue, assistance in drowning, and harvests. She is shown as a woman wearing a crown with a spiked wheel. Her cult was suppressed in 1969.
